

Did you know?
Many women
worked in factories
in World War One
while the men
fought overseas

This boiler suit and identity disc were worn by Alice Gibb
from the Grove, Ramsey. She would have been working in a munitions factory
that made bullets
and shells.

Did you know?
Women who worked in munitions
factories were sometimes called
'canary girls'?

Hi, I'm Alice
Gibbs. We were called 'canary girls'
because the chemicals
used in the making of amunitions could turn
our skin yellow!
